Adieu to my island-crd

        A                   D       E                            A
I must bid adieu to my island, leave the nights by the sea, D                 E                          A
my heart is heavy inside me, bowed down just like the palm tree.

         A                              D
1. The nights may be warm in Hawaii,
               E                      A
     and the sun may shine on Rome,
                                              D
    but the steel bands are playing in Trinidad,
              E                        A
     and my heart tells me that's home.

2. I've traveled around on the sailing ships
               E                    A
    from Barbados to Bombay,
                                          D
    but the laughter in the market in Trinidad
               E                        A
    tells me that's where I should stay.

A                  E          E7            A La la la la la, la la la la, la la la la la la. (2x)

3. The sun's comin' out of the ocean now,
            E             A
    in an hour I'll be gone.
    Watch from the mountain when the ships sail in E                   A
    for the one that I'll be on.
